

statistical fluctuation

Imagine you wake after 25 years sleep, and decide to look at the $\approx 9,000$ daily headlines you missed. I say: mostly as useful as looking at results of dice throws. Because you'll see

- earthquakes, hurricanes, plane crashes
- small wars
- political sex scandals
- partisan politics as a game
- Dow drops 3%
- corporation goes bankrupt

Point: News presents itself as “change” but mostly isn't.
