

- Coincidences are more likely than you think.
- The Kelly criterion marks the borderline between aggressive and insane investing.
- In everyday life actions under uncertainty, people are predictably irrational.
- In assessing predictions about the future, remember inertia, trends, statistical fluctuation and unpredictable unique events.